HISTORICAL HIGHLIGHT

Col. Jose Francisco Chaves
1833-1904

Colonel J. Francisco Chaves was a prominent politician, soldier, and lawyer during the 19th Century. Chaves was born into an influential family that included his grandfather Don Francisco Xavier Chaves who was governor of New Mexico for the Mexican Republic, and his stepfather was New Mexico Territorial Governor Henry Connelly. When Chaves was a boy it is said his father told him when sending him to school in St. Louis, "The heretics are going to overrun all this country. Go and learn their language and come back prepared to defend your people."* Chaves did just that in more ways than one. He was an experienced soldier rising to the rank of colonel and served in the Native Wars, as well as during the US Civil War. Chaves fought for the Union at the Battle of Valverde as well as at other engagements in response to the Texas-Confederate invasion. Chaves would later become a prominent lawyer as well as politician. He was a ranking member of the Republican Party of New Mexico, and served in the territorial legislature multiple times. He was district attorney of the then second judicial district, and was a member of the 39th, 40th, and 41st US Congress where he adamantly fought for New Mexico and advocated for statehood. Chaves was assassinated at a ranch at Pinos Wells in 1904. While suspects were accused and tried, justice was never served, and his murder went unpunished.

Surviving the Titanic Saturday, April 12 at 11:00 AM

Come hear the story of Maud Sincock Roberts' experience aboard the ill-fated Titanic, presented by her granddaughter, Gail Garcia. Presentation will include personal letters and memorabilia, newspaper interviews and articles, and a 1970's television interview. Nearly 113 years after the sinking of the Titanic, there is still more to learn about what happened that night.

Making Your 2D Art Professional on a Budget

Saturday, June 21 at 2:00 PM

Museum Technician Monica Kemsley, who is also an artist, will present on strategies you can use to make your art professional without using custom framing services. She'll discuss typical guidelines for calls for art, how to self-frame, demonstrate wiring, and provide tips for selecting pre-made frames with examples for participants to look at. Monica will also discuss ways to pre-plan your artworks in anticipation of future framing and presentation in shows.

Museum Services

We offer tours, talks, paint parties and exhibits throughout the year. Recently, we added a fun Coloring Corner station for all ages. We can also help with genealogical research, providing the use of historic publications, church, and census records. Our digital archives house oral histories provided by local residents. If you're interested in adding to our oral history project, please call us at (505) 352-7720 to make an appointment.
